Pontoon Road land is ordered rezoned

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

A Madison County circuit judge ruled Monday that several Pontoon Road residential properties near Maryville Road should be rezoned commercial.

The court could overturn the decision to open up a traditionally residential area to commercial use. They plan to ask Associate Judge Wendell Durr to reconsider his decision.

Since Durr ruled, the city will appeal the decision. Assistant City Attorney Ed Fitzhenry said Tuesday.

Leon Scroggins, a Granite City lawyer, filed suit on behalf of Richard Seiler, Fred and Muriel Fossieck, and Joseph and Mildred Bohnenstiel more than a year ago after their attempts to have their property rezoned were denied.

"What is unusual (about the decision) is the court has designated a zoning classification not requested by the residents," Fitzhenry said.

The lawsuit, filed Dec. 19, 1990, sought to have the properties located at 2401, 2415 and 2425 Pontoon Road rezoned from C-1 (residential) to C-2 (light commercial). But Durr ruled that the property should be rezoned C-2 (light commercial).

The court really can't designate the zoning, he said. It should either uphold the city's decision or find it arbitrary and capricious," Fitzhenry said.

"If the court rules the latter, then our clients should get what they asked for," he said. "But we think the preponderance of the evidence supported a ruling for the city."

Fitzhenry said the city will file a post-trial motion asking the court to reconsider its decision and find specifically that none of the property owners are entitled to commercial zoning. Should that fail, he will appeal the decision, he said.

Scroggins plans to file a post-trial motion of his own, he said. "We will file for reconsideration and think the court's findings will justify C-5 zoning," Scroggins said.

The suit alleged that the refusal by the city to change the zoning is "unconstitutional, unlawful and arbitrary in fact."

The city argued that, while Pontoon Road — a Huck's convenience store, Magna Colonial Bank and a post office — is zoned commercial, the city's comprehensive development plan calls for property on the north side of Pontoon Road to remain residential, at (See LAND, Page 2A)

Cruse would select Harrison

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

To elect or not to elect a street superintendent — that seems to be the immediate question in Granite City.

But in the event the street superintendent's job is run off the appointment radar, as an elected position, Mayor Von Dee Cruse said Wednesday he would select current Superintendent of Streets Clayton "Jug" Harrison for the post.

"I have no problem with (appointing Harrison), if he'd want the job. It isn't that I'm out to get anybody."

The problem is not with the person (in office), but the nature of the job itself. If that is the elected position makes it unmanageable," Cruse said.

The City Council asked Tuesday night that the city's attorney staff seek a legal opinion from Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine on whether the street superintendent's position is rightfully elective or appointive.

Based on the front-page article in our local newspaper on the controversy that may exist regarding our superintendent of streets position ... it behoves us to seek a legal opinion," Alderman Dan Partin, chairman of the Street and Alley Committee, said in making the request.

By voice vote, the council unanimously agreed to seek the opinion. (See CRUSE, Page 2A)

Madison panel bucks county, backs Bridick

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

In a departure from the county organization, the Madison Democratic executive committee voted Monday to endorse Don Bridick for circuit clerk in the March 17 Democratic primary.

Rep. Jerry Cestello, D-21st District, had been endorsed by the Madison County Democratic executive committee.

Melucci was endorsed by the county group over Bridick, an employee of the Madison County Sheriff's Department and a former Madison police chief and First Person executive. County Circuit Court bailiff, Willard "Butch" Portell, the incumbent, is not seeking re-election and has urged nominating Melucci.

Madison County Sheriff Bellcoff, who is also the Madison County Democratic chairman, admitted he is in an "awkward position" because it appears he failed to get Melucci the endorsement in Bellcoff's hometown. But Bellcoff said he knew Bridick had a "lot of hometown support."

Bellcoff said he told the Madison committee that "while I would stand by the county organization's endorsement, we were not out to force a candidate on them. I told them they have the right to make their own decision."

Bellcoff said the vote to endorse Bridick was not unanimous, but said a show of hands was so decisively in favor of Bridick that Bellcoff said he saw no reason to call for an actual vote

The full Madison Democratic membership is expected to endorse the executive committee's endorsement.

For Madison County Board seats, the Madison executive committee endorsed Frank Dutko and Charles "Skip" Johnson, both Madison residents.

Dutko is an incumbent board member, but redistricting placed him in the same district as incumbent Herbert "Junior" Johnson.

Blitzed

3,991 citations issued in week of crackdown

The Illinois State Police focus on safety belt violators has resulted in 3,991 people being issued tickets and warning citations in a single week, according to State Police Director Terry W. Gainer.

The stepped-up enforcement, part of an intensified public information and ticket-writing blitz to increase safety belt and child safety seat use, began Jan. 19.

Commenting on the blitz, Gainer said: "The Illinois State Police will continue to do everything possible to effectively enforce these laws. We deal with fact and not fiction."

The laws have proven worthwhile, he added.

"And the fact is that compliance with these laws saves lives, prevents serious injuries and saves everyone time and money," he said.

Troopers issued 1,605 tickets and 2,393 written warnings for safety belt violations and 108 tickets and 55 warnings for safety seat violations from Jan. 19 through 25.

"That's 3,991 more tickets than were written for these violations during the same time period last year," Gainer said.

This second in a series of safety belt blitz efforts will continue until Sunday. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) warns motorists that traffic accidents are the leading cause of death for children ages 5 through 19. NHTSA also estimates that universal use of safety belts and child restraints could reduce traffic deaths by 40 to 50 percent in the United States.

Wal-Mart presents checks — City Treasurer Gailville right, accepts a $4,000 check for the city from Wal-Mart's store manager, Bruce Brewer. The money will be used to make a video of Granite City to be shown to businesses considering locating in this area. See page 2A for more photos of Tuesday's grand opening of the store.

Every so often the world opens up to sporting goods store operator Earl Harris, turning him into an American host to foreign citizens.

Harris is a member of the World Council of Affairs and his wife, Carolyn, have opened their doors for a meal and informal discussion with foreign citizens for an evening.

Harris, 64, owns four Illinois sporting goods stores, in Granite City, Fairview Heights, Glen Carbon and Hillboro, but said his interest goes beyond sports.

"It's always fascinating to meet with citizens of other countries," he said. "A lot of people are thrilled to see what people here think, how they live, and what they eat. The visitors are always pleasant and appreciative."

Making parallels between the United States and other nations has always been interesting and informative, Harris said. He offered the opportunity to meet with foreign people two or three times a year in his home.

The couple answered an advertisement asking them to host an evening for foreign residents 25 years ago.

"It was exciting to us then, and it still is," Harris said. "We hope to be involved 25 years from now."

An effort is usually made to create a dinner party, provide a meal and an honest exchange of information, Harris said.

The Harrises recently spent an evening with two economists from Russia who were visiting this region to learn about taxation in America.

The state is asking for Granite City residents' comments regarding a permit decision to allow a treatment plant for hazardous waste within the city limits.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency gave notice of its intent to issue a permit to the proposed Eticam-Granite Inc. facility to be built between Illinois Route 9 and the Chain of Rocks Canal at 3001 Route 2, 1.5 miles south of the West Pontoon Road intersection.

The plant would treat hazardous wastes produced and sent and recycle the heavy metals providing commercial hazardous-waste management service to a wide usage of industrial clients.

Luke 11:35 . . . Take heed therefore that the light which is in you is not darkness."

There is lately a definite turning to the Scriptures by a multitude of persons seeking the truth. Wisdom dictates that we need qualified spiritual leaders to guide us in our search. To search for the truth without preparing our hearts and minds to receive from God is to deny ourselves the truth it contains.

There are so many misquotes of Scripture that it is easy to see the meaning of Jesus' statement: "The light you could be darkness if you are not careful. Let us take heed to God's Word. Let us search for the mind and will of God as we study His Word.

Let the light in you be light! Have a good week.

The controversy surrounding the issue stems from questions recently raised about the legality of a 1977 referendum making the position of street superintendent an elected one.

The city's municipal code still reflects a 1977 ordinance passed by the then-new City Council that made the position an appointed one at the end of then Street Superintendent Lionel Portell's term in May 1979.

But in 1987, voters approved, by a 10 to 1 margin, a referendum designed to overturn that ordinance and keep the position an elected one.

The central question seems to be whether the voters' decision is binding, or if the referendum was merely advisory, officials say.

Since the referendum, a superintendent has been elected four times, including Harrison in 1991.

Harrison said the issue has been raised again, after 15 years, because of "sour grapes."

"Now for the first time somebody supposedly remembers that the position is supposed to be appointed? Why did they raise the question again after 15 years?" Harrison asked.

He said the matter has everything to do with politics, and nothing to do with the law or how well he is running the street department.

"Even though none of (the politicians) were for me, 3,500 people voted for me because they thought I could run the street department," Harrison said.

"Now (the politicians) are still against me and I've never seen such sour grapes."

Harrison said that, because the matter is political in nature, the city's attorney should rule on the issue rather than the state's attorney.

"That way, (local) politics would be removed from the decision altogether," Harrison said.

Cruse, a long a supporter of having an appointed street superintendent — and Harrison agreed the department is being run well, but Cruse said making the position an appointment would greatly ease its responsibilities.

"(Harrison) knows the job, but there's more pressure on that job than any other job in the city, including my own," Cruse said.

Haine has already said that, if the position should be left open for an appointed one, Harrison, who was elected to a four-year term last year, would have the legal right to serve out his term.

Partney said Harrison deserves to know the status of the position beyond the salary factor alone and beyond three years.

"Once we have a written legal opinion, then the council can do what it feels needs to be done," Partney said.

Despite student opposition, SIUE housing costs may rise

The price of on-campus housing at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville could go up despite a thumbs down from the Student Senate.

The Board of Trustees of Southern Illinois University will consider increasing the cost of housing at Tower Lake Apartments, the Edwardsville campus, by up to 10 percent for families and as much as 7 percent for single students.

The board is also going to consider raising living costs at the Carbondale campus.

The increases will go before the board next week, but probably won't be decided on until March.

The Student Senate has voted against the fee increases and gave some ideas for adjustments to come up with the extra money needed," student body Vice President Corey Bradford said.

Student housing is one of the few areas of the university that is to cut back services at a campus restaurant, the Wild Turkey, doing away with one of the positions in student housing and decreasing the projected costs of operating the complex.

"The director tends to over-budget, and we took any program that was over-budgeted and cut it down to zero and found $45,000," Bradford said.

Monthly rent for families ranges from $374 for an unfurnished two-bedroom apartment to $487 for a furnished three-bedroom apartment. The new rates would range from $385 to $505.

Single students pay anywhere from $145 to $290 monthly. The new rates would range from $155 with a $25 per month fee.

About 1,600 students live in college housing.

"It's just a cost-of-living increase. The cost of utilities are the main reason for the increase plus we have increased the police force for security," Director of Student Housing Mike Schultz said.

Students said it was necessary to go ahead with the proposal despite the student senate's position against the increase.

"I have the responsibility for maintaining this facility in the long term," Schultz said.

The proposal will go to the board for the first time Feb. 13 in Carbondale. The board is not expected to vote on it until the March meeting.

Students living on the Edwardsville campus aren't the only ones faced with a possible increase.

Those who live in campus housing in Carbondale might be facing a 5 percent increase for room and board. The cost for room and board ranges from $1,440 to $1,824 per semester at SIUE.

The proposed fee increases would mean those pay students $1,512 to $1,915.

College-owned apartments without board now cost students between $262 to $346 monthly.

The proposed rates would range from $275 to $346. Rental fees for the Ellsworth Apartments and University Courts will remain the same.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes the consumer will order merchandise from a merchant, pay for the goods, and become dissatisfied with the purchase within the guarantee period. The question sometimes arises as to what remedy is available to the buyer if the seller breaches the contract between the parties. A recent case involved a cabinetmaker and a homeowner who helped determine what a consumer should proceed when there is a breach of contract by the merchant.

In this case, a consumer and a cabinetmaker entered into an oral contract whereby the craftsman would make ten cabinets for a total purchase price of $3,200. When the first three cabinets were finished, the purchaser paid the remaining balance of the purchase price and awaited the delivery of the other seven cabinets. Several months later, two more cabinets were presented to the purchaser, but the cabinets did not match the first three.

At this point, the homeowner informed the cabinetmaker that he wanted his money refunded. The workman agreed to this and made a partial payment, but never paid the balance. Despite repeated demands by the purchaser, the craftsman continually refused to reimburse the balance owed by him.

What options are available to the homeowner? He could bring a small claims complaint against the craftsman. The court in this case probably found that the cabinetmaker had breached his contract and enter a judgment against the defendant for the balance of the purchase price plus court costs.

The real problem facing the homeowner in this case is whether he can collect on the judgment. The homeowner indicated that the craftsman was on the verge of bankruptcy and had no assets. Since the craftsman was self-employed, it would be impossible to garnish his wages. The purchaser could bring him to court on a citation to distrain his assets and the judge could order the defendant to pay a certain amount per month. In this particular case, however, there was a possibility of the cabinetmaker filing bankruptcy and disappearing.

In cases such as this, the buyer frequently finds it impossible to collect on the judgment and therefore gives up pursuing the seller. Perhaps the lesson to be learned from this article is that the buyer should not pay the purchase price until the goods are delivered and known to be satisfactory.

Opinion

Editorials

To elect or not to elect?

In 1977 the residents of Granite City made it quite clear that they wanted a say in who would supervise the city's street department. By a 10 to 1 margin they said they wanted to elect a street superintendent.

The voters wanted someone to be directly responsible for seeing that potholes were filled and snow-covered streets were cleared. The voters wanted to know where the buck stops when they had problems with their roads.

During the next 15 years, the voters got politicians with higher aspirations, seeing the citywide, high-profile elected office of street superintendent as a stepping stone to bigger and better opportunities.

In April 1991, Clayton "Jug" Harrison said he, too, was tired of politics being a part of the street superintendent's job, and said he wanted to run the street department and nothing else. The voters liked the idea and gave him the job.

Running the department is an enormous job, but apparently not an easy one because within the first six months of Harrison's four-year term he was knee deep in the politics he campaigned to avoid.

Harrison said recently, "I'm running the department well. The men are doing a beautiful job." Residents are happy to hear that and even more pleased if they can see physical evidence in the condition of city streets.

But how is it then that Harrison has spent a majority of his time in office "dodging bullets"?

Many of those bullets can be attributed to the politics that surround city government, but Harrison has too often made himself a target by encroaching into territories beyond the scope of street department responsibilities.

A lot of people must be beginning to question their judgment in making the superintendent of streets an elected position, since the position and politics can't seem to be separated.

The system should be able to work. The problems that plague the street department are non-existent for the treasurer and city clerk, elected positions with representatives who stay within their own boundaries.

Harrison needs to prove that his job can be accomplished without the power struggle of politics hanging over it.

If he cannot achieve that goal — which he set for himself during the campaign — then the people need to demand it be an appointed position.

Patience is wearing thin. The time for Harrison to prove voters made the right choice in 1977 and 1991 is now.

Overpopulation a serious threat

(By Prof. F. Henry Firsching, SIEU School of Sciences)

Every hour that goes by, there are 10,000 more people living on Earth. This is not just births, but births minus deaths. The exact statistical increase is slightly more than 10,000 every hour.

What does this mean? To the billions of people that we must supply the homes, the furniture, the roads, the water supplies, food, etc., for 10,000 people, it is comparable to a city of that many persons appearing every hour. This goes on 24 hours a day, every day of the year. At this rate, the total added population is 2.8 billion for 1990. The stress on the environment is severe: the world birth rate is too high.

Nigeria in West Africa, has the highest birth rate. Other examples of countries with prodigious birth rates are: Bangladesh, in Asia, and our next-door neighbor, Mexico. There are some common factors in these countries: population is miserably poor and education in these countries is minimal.

Also, women in these countries have a very limited status; they have little control over their own personal destiny. Religion, economic conditions and native culture restrict the freedom of women in most developing countries.

The United States is in a unique world leadership position and could have a profound effect on this alarming world birth-rate problem. The U.S. could encourage the aforementioned countries to improve the status of women, and also encourage family planning. Most poor countries are hard-pressed to meet the barest essential needs of the nations they already have. Adding more people compounds that problem.

Norplant, a fertility control, is an example of how some progress could be made. Norplant is a series of small plastic inserts that could be implanted in the upper arm of women. These implants will release a synthetic hormone that prevents an egg from being released from the ovaries. Each Norplant can prevent pregnancy for up to five years. Anytime a pregnancy may be desired, the implant can be removed and the normal female cycle begins again.

This type of family planning is not being promoted by the United States, but it should be. Let's hope that the U.S. will soon take a vigorous leadership role in attempting to control the runaway birth rate around the world. If the U.S. does not, then it probably will not be done. And if the birth rate is not brought under control, the world will suffer the ravages of overpopulation.

Human beings are a curse to much of the natural life on Earth, which could become more and more impoverished and despoiled by an ever-increasing horde of humans. The huge mass of humanity will severely restrict how any individual can live. The world could become a decidedly less desirable place.

The world must take immediate action to slow down and eventually stop this disastrous population increase. Unless the human population is held in check, all attempts to save specific forms of wildlife could be doomed. There may be no place for them. It is that simple.

Issue credits to buy U.S. products

(Comment by Karl L. Monroe, retired editor of the Collinville Herald)

So George Bush wants to spend $30 billion more on space exploration, along with giving the Soviets $850 million to tide them over a bad winter and terrible economy.

We poured countless billions into a race to surpass the Soviets in space. Now that the Soviet threat has been revealed as the sham it always was, why doesn't George face the facts? We don't have to try to keep up with the Soviets any longer. We can sit around the globe.

For 10 years, Reagan and Bush put half of our research and development into the military buildup. At the same time, Japan, protected by us for free, put the billions they saved on their tiny military costs into research and development of products they could sell全世界 worldwide.

In fact, they took the great ideas and research our scientists originated and took over our markets for consumer radios, TVs, VCRs, etc.

To regain the lead in areas we have lost to the Japanese, we ought to cut the military R&D drastically and put the same scientists to work solving basic economic problems that set around the globe.

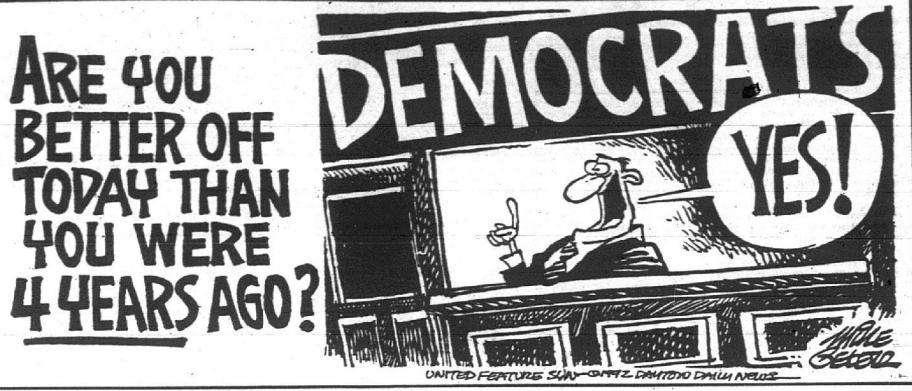

And instead of begging Japan to buy our products and take down the trade barriers they throw up against that, we ought to lean on them to pay full cost of the defense we provide them now gratis.

That would level the playing field more than quotas.

If we stop wasting our brains on military and space boondoggles, I am sure we could come up with some ideas that can pull ahead again.

While I'm on ideas to help America, I pass on a simple idea Senator Boren is trying to spread.

If we seem determined to help nations around the globe with billions of foreign aid, at least make it in the form of credits that can be used only to buy U.S. goods. At least that would bring some benefit back to the U.S. taxpayers.

Five task forces fight drug abuse

TO THE EDITOR:

I read with great interest your editorial in the Press-Record/Journal regarding the need for prevention of alcohol and other drugs to be a community effort.

I also read the front page story you ran several weeks ago interviewing a local drug dealer and a resident of the community. The resident stated repeatedly that he thought nothing was being done in the community effort for drug and alcohol prevention.

Both of these articles prompted me to write and let you know about the efforts of a number of groups of citizens in the Tri-Cities area.

As a professional in the field of prevention, I frequently hear there is nothing being done in the community effort for drug and alcohol prevention. On the contrary, there is a great deal being done in the Tri-Cities area in prevention programs.

Therefore, from the Tri-Cities Area United Way, Coordinated Youth Services and Piasey Health Care began a program six months ago called Healthy Lifestyles.

Healthy Lifestyles is a community-based drug and alcohol prevention program developed to respond to the need for prevention programs. To promote this need, SIEU was commissioned to conduct a needs assessment in this community.

Healthy Lifestyles is a program intended to complement existing services such as the school-based DARE program, the Visions for the Future Program in cooperation with the Madison County Housing Authority, and Project Cleanup, to name a few.

Healthy Lifestyles involves the entire community: businesses, churches, government, schools and family.

We conduct community education sessions, parenting workshops, senior citizen wellness programs, workplace training and youth workshops. These programs are open to the public and free of charge by contacting me at Coordinated Youth.

One important component of the program is the formation of community task forces in Granite City, Pontoon Beach, Mitchell and Venice.

Madison already has an active task force with Madisonians Against Drugs (MAD). The community task forces are comprised of citizens who have the desire to impact their community for change. These task forces work as a unifying force to inform citizens about drug and alcohol programs.

In addition, the role of task forces will be that of identifying areas of concern in their respective communities and developing strategies to enable community residents to experience even healthier lifestyles.

The Granite City Drug and Alcohol Task Force meet the first Wednesday of each month at Shoney's Restaurant for a luncheon meeting and is currently working on Community Impactor Training.

The Pontoon Beach Task Force held a meeting at 6 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 13, at the Ridgeway Restaurant in Pontoon Beach.

The Mitchell Drug and Alcohol Task Force is still in the developmental stages and residents of that community are welcomed to become involved by calling me at Coordinated Youth Services.

The Venice Task Force is in the process of establishing a cohesive group and has had two planning meetings.

Anyone who is a concerned citizen of each of the communities is welcome to get involved in these task forces.

They set the standards for their own communities.

For meeting times in each of the communities, you may call me at Coordinated Youth at 876-8181. We welcome input from all members of the community and hope to be able to provide residents with more information.

I thank you for allowing me to respond to these articles in addition to the Tri-Cities Area United Way for making these prevention programs possible in our community.

Need emphasis on brotherhood

TO THE EDITOR:

It usually happens each workday around noon. Two or three of us, sometimes more, leisurely gather beneath the maypole sky for the most important meal of the day, a sandwich in blue coveralls, a yellow hard hat, and steel-toed shoes.

I would think we were drawn to the maypole. You with one part we have wanted for this very thing. Our purpose is to have an audience with the King of Kings, Jesus Christ.

It is our custom for one of us to lead in the petition, having first obtained requests from the others.

The usual fare includes prayer for those attending, our fellow workers, the company and those troubled, sick, depressed and in need of a Savior.

Because Jesus took our place on the cross, we can now refer to God as Father, and each other as brothers. We are a mixed lot, representing both black and white.

Bigotry is a terrible thing. Passed from father to son, it can be deeply rooted in the very depths of the heart. Arm-twisting legislation can't remove it.

These laws act only as a cosmetic powder which covers the festering wound. The only effective way to remove it from the inside out. That is why it is imperative that this ugliness be removed, first of all, from our church.

A local congregation is addressing the problem. On Saturday, Feb. 8, at Tri-City Park Tabernacle, located on Maryville Road, at 6:30 p.m., there will be a service of worship, prayer and praise where a black group will be ministering.

(Editor's note: The nationally-known Stars of Virginia from Richmond, Va., will participate along with the children's choir of Venice's New Salem Missionary Baptist Church.)

I am not a member of this Tri-City Park church, but I don't attend services there. I don't belong to their denomination, and we may even disagree on inconsequential points of religion. However, I know we both worship the same Jesus Christ.

Let us all of us who consider ourselves to be Christians gather together and prove it. Let us put aside our differences, our preconceptions, our bigotries, if God's will is to survive, its heart must be pure. Only Jesus can make it so.

John 4:20 states, "If someone says, 'I love God,' and hates his brother, he is a liar. For whoever does not love his brother whom he has seen, cannot love God whom he has not seen."

Do you care about this area, whatever your skin tone or nationality, whatever your denominational preference, let's gather together under one roof. Jesus is still in the healing business. He can heal our land.

Persecution by U.S. government

TO THE EDITOR:

On April 23, 1990, Timothy Carney was awakened and delivered a child pornography video tape. He did not order this tape. It was sent to him by the U.S. government for reasons of entrapment.

The U.S. government has set up a "sting operation" to entrap people who they believe are into child pornography.

His statement that he is being denied his rights as a trustee to look at personnel files may well be an attempt by Mr. Farmer to cover his real facts.

Members of the Board of Trustees have a responsibility to respect the rights of college employees. Board policy does not allow a single board member unlimited access to personnel files.

Any board member can view a personnel file, in executive session, if the board, if the board agrees the request is reasonable.

The policy is designed to protect employees from abusive which complaints he does not like.

Recently, Mr. Farmer demanded access to many personnel files. At first, he refused to let me see a purpose for his demand.

After some argument, he finally gave a reason which he later changed. His final purpose was based on wage complaints he had received.

The rest of the board questioned him about these complaints, but he refused to let me see the wage complaints he had received and the nature of those complaints. He gave no explanation for refusing to share this information with the rest of the board.

The majority of the board felt that Mr. Farmer was acting in an irresponsible manner and refused him access to the list of personnel files.

Any board member can have access to personnel files if they are willing to state a reasonable purpose for their request.

In this instance, Mr. Farmer refused to discuss his purpose

They were new officers in the Veltin regiment. I picked them up from a St. Louis hotel and brought them to our home," Harris said.

He said that an interpreter was available, but one of the visitors spoke English very well.

Their attitude was that everything in Russia was fine economically, Harris said.

"They anticipated no problem," Harris said. "I thought that I was getting the 'party line,' which is probably related to the newness of the regime."

Although he was skeptical of what they said about Russian prosperity, Harris recalled that they were friendly and cordial, appeared to have enjoyed the meal and conversation.

"One of them saw his name in a local paper concerning a talk he would give at an area school, and he thought it was so funny.

"He said that, in Russia, it would be considered far too unimportant," Harris said.

Playing host to foreigners has been a wonderful way for him to learn and grow, Harris said, adding that his friendships have been formed over the years.

The couple has tutored numerous Japanese doctors in conversational English through a program at Washington University in St. Louis, Harris said.

"We became very close to one Japanese couple," he said. "Our son stayed with them during a visit to Japan. There is fulfillment in being a host in your own country."

Visitors from other countries besides Russia and Japan also have shared evenings with the couple, including residents of Brazil, Ethiopia and Taiwan.

The conversations have given Harris a strong appreciation for being an American. "I don't think they think of us as ugly Americans," he said. "They are very open with us. (Some) do not have the goods that we do. It makes you realize that you are better off than you ever considered."

Gas-detecting devices would be located throughout the facility and all waste receiving, storage and treatment areas would be inside a totally enclosed building.

The building would be designed to contain a potential spill of the combined total of all 102 tanks, according to the application.

The plant would be divided into seven areas: receiving, storage, treatment reactors, solids, de-watering, drying, and metal recovery.

The permit would become effective 35 days after serving of notice.

The IEPA's draft permit decision is held over for another year, and the agency's waste treatment facility would be delayed.

The plant would be divided into seven areas: receiving, storage, treatment reactors, solids, de-watering, drying, and metal recovery.

The permit would become effective 35 days after serving of notice.

"I finally thought to myself that I was not born to be an alcoholic or a drug addict, so why couldn't I go back to where I came from," he said. "We said to ourselves that we can't be what we want to be in Venice or Madison, so we adjust our lives to our environment."

Despite the fact that he grew up in housing projects in St. Louis, Berry wanted to be a television star from the time he was five. His mother moved his family to a better neighborhood in California when he was 14 years old. "My brother and I used to eat out of dumpsters, but at least I was closer to my goal, which was television," he said.

Berry joined the cast of "What's Happening?" in 1975 at age 23.

"My life is proof that you can still make something with your goals if you do something every day to move closer to them," Berry said.

But the success that brought him all the material things, anything but happiness, leading to an addiction to drugs and three suicide attempts over a 10-year period, he said.

peculiarities such as traffic patterns in the area that we wouldn't know without public comments.

A public hearing can be held to discuss any or more issues concerning the draft permit decision, in response to public requests or at the discretion of the IEPA.

"The extent of the IEPA permit only goes to the facility boundaries," McGinnis said, adding that the Illinois Department of Transportation is the authority to define specific trucking routes.

The 21-acre facility would treat and store a total of 557,644 gallons of hazardous and non-hazardous waste in 102 tanks. Hazardous wastes would be generated off-site and received for storage or treatment at Eticam.

The effect on ground water is a bit of a concern, since one of the large numbers of private wells in the area, McGinnis said.

"We're responsible for the safety of storage once the waste is transported to the area," she said.

The difference in this facility compared to many others is that it has not been built yet, McGinnis said.

"We're simply approving the blue print," she said.

"We reviewed their application for a permit. We adjusted their draft proposal to meet our technical requirements and other conditions to protect the environment."

"Now the community responds to our draft, including Eticam, Granite City, and all comments get considered prior to the final permit," he said.

The general conditions included in the permit are waste analysis, site inspection requirements, emergency planning, employee safety training, minimum site engineering standards, and financial responsibility.

The applicant must convince the IEPA that the facility and its waste-management practices would meet all requirements and provide adequate health and environmental protection, McGinnis said.

Eticam-Granite pledged attention to safety and environmental protection.

•Ortblas: Plant could attract industry

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

The hazardous-waste treatment facility proposed in Granite City would not be a danger to the environment and would be a seed for attracting industry into the area, Granite City Economic Development Director Alan Ortblas said this week.

Eticam-Granite Inc. would treat hazardous wastes, solvents, acids and solids and recycle metals.

"This plant is not like anything we have in town," Ortblas said. "They're a good group of people and we're excited about the cutting edge of technology."

Other businesses would come into this region to be close to the treatment service, Ortblas predicted.

The facility would provide commercial hazardous-waste management for a wide variety of industrial clients. It would recover metal-bearing waste from the waste received from metal finishing and electronics firms.

Officials began working to bring the proposed plant into

Trivia

Venice Mayor Dr. John E. Lee said that in 1961 and again in 1969, in 1973, one of Lee's goals was to "get the underpass speeded up and finished."

Granite City is 1985. Eticam-Granite Inc. has been working with them for six years," Ortblas said. "I don't know how many companies would put it in six years, so they obviously have a good idea."

The corporate home office is located at Providence in Rhode Island. The 21-acre Granite City site would employ approximately least until the road can be widened to accommodate increased traffic.

The street currently has a westbound lane and an eastbound lane.

In his ruling, Durr said, "Zoning ordinances are properly viewed as a means to control and regulate the development and transition of real estate usage, not to serve to stifle such growth and where, as here, the area has experienced a transition from residential to dental usage to burgeoning traffic and commercial usage."

Durr ruled that the zoning change is needed "not to create traffic problems, but to allow the traffic and take advantage of the traffic that is already in this area."

He said the intersection of Maryville and Pontoon roads is one of the busiest, apparently the third busiest, in the entire city, and that the properties in question "are not now truly suitable for residential usage because of noise and congestion of the traffic."

Fitzhenry said that, although the city has strictly adhered to its comprehensive plan when considering zoning changes, the ruling will allow uses in contradiction to the plan, and adjoining property owners could conceivably seek commercial uses as well.

Alderman Jeff Worthen, chairman of the City Council's Planning and Zoning Committee, said the decision "apparently didn't take into consideration either a restrictive covenant in effect in the area, or the city's comprehensive plan."

None of all the more than 100 area residents appearing at a Plan Commission hearing Nov. 1990, objected to the rezoning. They filed petitions against the request bearing more than 200 signatures.

Carl Thornsberry of the 2400 block of Waterman Avenue, which abuts the property in question, said that unwanted lights, noise and filth accompanying commercial development would "destroy one of the best areas and clean residential areas in the city."

In related case, Durr ruled that property located on the northwest corner of the intersection of Pontoon and Maryville roads, 2701 Pontoon Rd., from the Seller property should be rezoned C-2 from R-1, as requested by Ewing Andrews.

Andrews' request had also been denied by the city.

Disability applicants can have representation at agency hearings

By Bill Hunot
Social Security Administration

When unemployment increases so does the number of Social Security disability claims. In 60 percent of applications for disability benefits are denied, and many of them choose to seek help in pursuing their appeals. As a result, representation of Social Security claimants is a growing industry.

Having representation is never required, but people have the right to have an attorney in dealing with Social Security. If you decide you want representation, you should appoint your representative in writing—preferably on Social Security's prescribed form.

After that, Social Security will work with your representative just as it would with you. Your representative examines your claim to determine if you have a disability. Social Security receives notices of decisions made on your claim, submits evidence and requests appealing. Your representative also can charge a fee. However, no fee may be charged without written approval from the Social Security Administration. In fact, any collecting fee that hasn't been approved is subject to prosecution.

However, approval is not needed for your representative to ask you for reimbursement on his actual out-of-pocket expenses. And Social Security will automatically approve fees that are no more than 25 percent of past due benefits, or $4,000, whichever is less. No itemized bill is necessary unless a higher fee is requested.

You can choose an attorney or other qualified person to represent you. Some attorneys can help you find an attorney or give you free legal services if you qualify. Some attorneys don't charge unless you receive benefits.

If you are represented by an attorney, 25 percent of your past due Social Security benefits are withheld to pay toward the fee.

I'm retired and I've been drawing Social Security for the last couple of years. I had quite a bit of income in 1991 from my pension and rentals. What sources of income count against that $7,000 limit on people on Social Security?

A. Only wages and net earnings from self-employed counts for Social Security's earnings limit (commonly called the retirement test). Your pension does not count. Other sources of income that don't count against that $7,000 limit on people on Social Security?

Rental income usually doesn't count either. For example, if you rent out a house or apartment building, the net rents don't count against the earnings limit. There are a couple of exceptions to that rule. Rental income can count if you are a real estate dealer or if you rent out farm land and are primarily participating in the farming operation.

Q. Who decides if a person's physical or mental impairment is severe enough for Social Security benefits to be paid?

A. Social Security has a committee of medical and non-medical experts (the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Northern Mariana Islands) to make disability decisions. Each of the 50 has a Disability Determination Service (DDS) that is funded by federal money and makes disability decisions based on federal rules.

So, if you have a medical condition, you file an application for benefits and provide information from the claimant on the kind of impairment and sources of treatment. DDS contacts doctors and collects medical evidence and makes arrangements if needed. Every year, each DDS processes more than 2 million disability decisions.
